

My Example of a Digital Portrait for myself

It is Saturday, October 19, 2013. I'm John Riebli. This is my digital portrait...

1. I value good health, quality friends, and developing new skills. I love fresh technology, finding creative solutions to simple problems and meeting new people.
2. I shine when I create things that are new to me....things like hand cut dovetail joints, architectural structures or a new twist for a lesson in a class at school. And I like to maintain complicated systems like my car or my in floor heating system. Eventually I would like to create an outdoor room that is my workshop gallery to house my tools and projects.
3. Some of my transferrable skills are:
  - I can translate ideas to frameworks and plans for projects.
  - I am able to lead a team to build out plans and turn them into completed projects.
  - I am sensitive to the needs of other people.
  - Skills I would like to develop include learning how to empower other people more and becoming more skilled in recognizing other peoples needs and celebrating their skills.
4. Outcomes:
  - My personal goal is to take care of my family while remaining as curious as my cat.
  - My work goal is to be better skilled to work with a team to solve problems.
  - My educational goal is to learn one thing new each day.
